We are recruiting for a Field Crew Operative

We work for major water companies across the UK, delivering a top-class service that provides them with important data.

We're looking for 5 people who would relish the opportunity to work across the country, as part of a three-person team, carrying out installation calibration and maintenance of water flow and level monitors in man-hole chambers.

Daily, you will typically share the driving with your colleagues and visit around 10 sites. On each site, you will support your Crew Leader in setting up safely (this will include lifting and carrying equipment from the vehicle to the specified site). Once set up, you will enter the confined space, man-hole chamber and carry out the installation, calibration or removal of our equipment. Full training is provided.

We will teach you all the technical bits you need but to help us continue to be the best at what we do. We will also fund all your safety critical training such as confined space entry training.

Our successful candidates will be positive, friendly and flexible people who will get on well working in a small team, travelling in a company van daily. You must be willing to learn and you must have a safe approach to your work.

The following are also essential:

- Full UK Driving Licence
- A willingness to work away from home (including overnight stays Mon-Thurs nights)
- A willingness to be flexible in terms of working hours – Some Saturday and Sunday shifts, may be required (this will attract a higher rate of pay)

It is desirable, but not essential that candidates have the following knowledge and/or experience:

- Experience driving a van
- Experience of confined space entry
- Experience of the waste water industry

Our Head Office is based in Leeds, West Yorkshire.
